TIMES-VIRGINIAN

A. H. CLEMENT, Editor.

THURSDAY, JAN. 24, 1924

The Governor and Senator Byrd.

Senator Byrd is to be commended for his stand in opposition to Governor Trinkle's proposition to borrow money to meet road construction bills and to carry over a deficit to the next administration, unless the increase in taxati n should take care of said deficit, which appears to be about $2,000.000. This paper has not criticised the Governor—we wanted to see him make good if he could. We opposed his nomination, we opposed his road plan (if he had any.) Let the present Legislature stop creating offices and jobs for "the faithful' at the expense of the tax-payers and apply the State's income to her greatest needs and the liquidation of this deficit. The Governor is not entirely responsible for all the deficit, but it is our opinion that he had best foregon the erection of his sky-scraping monument after he found the State's revenues dwindling from a working capital of three-quarters of a million left him by Governor Davis until now a deficit of $2.000,0.0 faces us. Various ways are being suggested to meet the shortage, but the governor does not take kindly to the equalization of the tax burden as suggested by that statesman John Garland Pollard. Mr. Byrd is right, should he be the choice of the Democrats for next Governor he ought at least have a small working capital. He is perfectly consistent in his views—"pay as you go" and then we wont owe.

Why Not

It has been suggested that the new Board of Supervisors have the finances of Appomattox audited and that the balance to the credit of each fund be shown on each meeting day, then require the clerk to furnish the paper with an itemized statement of all disbursements. The paper will print it at a reduced rate and the tax-payers will know how and for what the funds are being spent. The law justifies it, the people want it, and Why Not?

The mountains groaned, the mouse came forth — Delegate Hardee has introduced a bill changing the name of the Labor Bureau to that of Industrial Commission.

Over in Appomattox county the spirit of patronizing home enterprises does not seem to be running rife in some instances as we are advised the county superintendent of schools had his report published in a Lynchburg paper instead of in home paper as it should have been—Farmville Leader.

If the Legislature will give the people of Appo mattox a chance to vote on their Superintendent of School Board, we have an idea that he will never have a chance to spend another dollar of the county's money in an official way. Let's go back to the people who pay the bills—What say you all Virginia Democrats.

Bats' Habits.

As bats are only rarely seen in the daytime, people, as a rule, know very little about them. When attracted by a light, and a window chanced to be open, one will, during the warmer parts of the year, fly in and cause considerable excitement, as Nature Maxatns. The best thing to do is to allow it to escape in its own manner, as the interesting little mammal preys upon no end of harmful insects.

Arnold in His Poetry.

Splendor, music, passion, breadth of movement and rhythm, we find in him to no great abundance; what we do find is high distinction of feeling (to use his own word), a temperance, a kind of modesty of expression, which is at the same time an artistic resource—the completion of his work; and a remarkable faculty for touching the chords which connect our feelings with the things that others have done and spoken—Henry James.

Would Dodge Penalty.

Some small town citizen wrote to his congressman for a current patent office report. This was promptly forwarded to him under the usual departmental postal wrapper which has in one corner the notice "Penalty for private use, $300." In due time the congressman got the following letter: "Dear Sir: I received the book, but I see the penalty for private use is $300 So I have turned the volume over to our public library."

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Latest Gleanings From All Over the State

THINGS SEEN AND HEARD

Lynchburg.—Perry A. Profit and Aubrey B. Camden, both of Amherst county, who were arrested last summer under charges of using the mails to defraud large mail order houses, have been convicted in the Federal Court here.

Fredericksburg.—At the annual meeting of the Fredericksburg Volunteer Fire Department the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Simon Hirsh, president; Silas R. Perry, vice-president; Samuel Perry, treasurer; Oliver Morrison, secretary; Thomas Morrison, assistant secretary; J. Conway Chichester, chief; L. J. Houston, Jr., fire warden; J. A. White, houseman.

Harrisonburg.—A federation of the Men's Bible Classes of the city's Protestant churches will be organized at a mass-meeting of all the classes on Sunday, January 27, it was decided here by the preliminary committee composed of a representative of each church. The federation, it is expected, will be of a permanent character in the union evangelistical campaign here in April.

Harrisonburg.—Professor Will H. Rosebush, of Dayton, leader of the 116th infantry Band during the World War, will direct the Harrisonburg Municipal Band, which is being revived in preparation for the five or six State conventions to be entertained here this year. The old Harrisonburg Band disbanded two years ago, but all of its members and a number of the younger musicians have agreed to come into the new organization.

Roanoke.—All Lutherans in Virginia will become members of the Lutheran Synod, of Virginia, it was unanimously voted at the annual convention held at St. Mark's Church. A delightful banquet was served to laymen and ministers, at which interesting addresses were delivered by prominent visitors. For many years there existed a Tennessee Synod of the Lutheran Church. This synod had a number of churches in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. A year ago the part in South Carolina united with the Lutherans in that State, and the part in Virginia united in synodical relation with the Lutherans in North Carolina. The action taken which brings all Virginia Lutherans into the synod is considered one of the most important steps taken in years.

Danville.—Mattie Chattin, aged 16, was shot and painfully wounded in the leg by her mother, Mrs. Mattie Chattin, accidentally, it developed following a call sent to a Danville physician who went to Ringgold, where the accident took place. A group of boys is said to have congregated in Mrs. Chattin's yard and when ordered to leave, it is said that they became impertinent to Mrs. Chattin. In order to frighten the boys away she took her husband's shotgun and securing a shell stood on the porch and in plain view of the youngsters loaded the gun. She "broke" the gun and inserted the shell; then, as she snapped the breech back into place, the gun was accidentally discharged and the shot inflicted a serious wound about the leg of her small daughter, who was standing nearby.

Richmond.—At the closing session of the Association of Virginia Fairs held at Murphy's Hotel the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, H. S. Watkins, Danville; vice-presidents, W. C. Saunders, Richmond; Lem P. Jordan, Suffolk; Thomas B. McClain, Covington and T. L. Pitts, Galax; secretary-treasurer, C. B. Ralston. Lynchburg was elected as the convention city for the next year with no announcement of the date. The convention went on record in favor of abolishing clean fairs for the future. In this connection Mr. Talaton pointed out that there were at least twenty fairs in Virginia which were not members of the association. mostly because they are not eligible for membership because of their unclean character. Mr. Ralston declared that no fair run for financial profit could become a member of this association, one of its stipulations being that all returns above the actual expense of the fair must be put back into the development of the grounds and premiums. He declared that the thirty-two members of this association were run for the public good of agriculture and industrial education of the people.

Winchester.—Floyd Brower was released on $5,000 bail for the city grand jury, after being booked on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Vincent R. Tharpe, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Tharpe, who died in a local hospital an hour after being struck by Brower's automobile. Brower's attorney had made an impassioned plea before the court that the warrant be dismissed on the ground that the accident was unavoid. le. Dismissal of the warrant was vigorously opposed by the Commonwealth's Attorney.

Wireless for Cars.

Wireless sets for motor cars manufactured in England cost $600 and enable passengers to listen in while the car is moving. This is for large covered in cars with an aerial tucked away in the roof. There is also a smaller $125 set which must be connected with a fuse for an aerial. But it offers motorists the advantage of listening in while picnicking in the heart of the woods.

Blushing.

Blushing is a sign of a self-conscious and shy nature. It is also the expression of a sensitive regard for the opinions of others. Some girls carry blush. Blacks and habitual criminals never blush. Blushing is often a sign of a refined and modest disposition. It is a curious fact that short-sighted girls are more liable to blush without their eyeglasses than when wearing them.

The body of a colored man named Tom Nowlin, was brought here from West Virginia Sunday and taken to his old home, near Spring Hills, for burial. He was crushed to death in the mines.

The sewerage system of the school here is just completed and is a great addition to not only our school, but our town as well. Through the efforts of Mrs. A. R. Harwood this move was started and to her and her co-workers we feel indebted for this sanitary improvement in our town.

A good report comes from the Co-Op last week—sales —$88,000 pounds of tobacco, with a record on Saturday of a shipment of 80 hogsheads in one day. There still seems to be considerable tobacco throughout the county. A shame that Appomattox don't rehandle this raw product of her own sons. What's the matter Co-Ops?

Last Thursday Mrs. Morty Gulls was very much alarmed, when, on missing her little three-year-old boy went in search of him upstairs, and on opening the door found the door on fire and a number of her clothes burned. The little fellow had hidden under the bed. The damage was covered by insurance. It is not known just how the fire originated.

Curtis Blackwell is finishing up his home in east end.

Prof. Crawley, Secy-Treas. of the Appomatox County Fair, attended the Annual Conference of the Secretaries of Virginia State Fairs this week in Richmond. Mr. Crawley was especially interested in a clean-up of the county fairs. In co-operation with the State Association, he hopes to secure more and better amusements for this county next fall. The State body passed resolutions for cleaner shows and no gambling in which Mr. Crawley took an active part.

Pamplin School Trouble settled

M. B. Dulling, principal of the Pamplin high school, who was reinstated after his removal has decided that it would be unwise for him to continue the position and has resigned. L. N. Ligon of Pamplin, wrote the News Leader today. He said Mr. Dulling would resume college work at William and Mary, and that the school was operating without a principal until one could be obtained.

Mr. Ligon declared that the double developed through difference between the six teachers in the school and Mr. Dulling, the teachers requesting that the school board ask for the principal's resignation. This was done, but thirty-eight representative patrons of the school appeared before the school board for a reopening of the matter on the ground that Mr. Dulling had not been given sufficient time to refute the charges.

The case was reopened with the result that the board reinstated the principal, but Mr. Duling believed it unwise for him to continue and decided to resume college work.—News-Leader.

Parent Teachers Association Meeting

Was held on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the high school auditorium. This was a very important meeting as reports were received from the committee appointed some time ago to see that an adequate sewerage system be placed in the high school.

The committee reports that the work was finished at a cost of $482 and of this amount the school board paid $217.

The Association hereby extends a vote of thanks to the school board for its assistance and all of those who subscribed to this work.

We extend a vote of thanks to the committee, and especially to B. G. Anderson, the Chairman, for his zeal and interest, and untiring efforts in carrying the work to completion.

A contest is being put on by the teachers to stimulate the interest of the parents. The parents having children in the various grades, are being urged to attend the meetings of the Association, at these meetings the parents are being counted, and the grade represented by the greatest number of parents is to receive a banner.

What grade will get the banner, Parents come and encourage the children.

Shades for the windows was discussed. The Association is anxious to have shades for the school and ask the school board to meet them on a fifty fifty basis of the cost.

The Association, strictly speaking, is not a money raising organization, but largely enters into all the social relationships of the school life whenever it is necessary to lend aid in raising funds to get things that are necessary for the well being of the school it always stands ready to help.

An interesting pictorial and literary program is being arranged for the night of the 4th of February. The talent will be from Farmville and a fine, boost their entertainment.

The Association meets the second Friday in every month, at 2:30 o'clock. All parents are urged to co-operate.

Weight of Ostrich.

Adult ostriches weigh from 150 to 400 pounds, dependent on their breeding and handling, says Nature Magazine. They are taller than the common Indian pony or the average pole pony, and their long, strong legs are the most interesting features of their physical makeup.

Rev. Pippin and Deputy Sheriff Connor

Meet On Main Street Saturday And Engage In Fist Fight

"I would not take $100 for the difference," said Rev. W. W. Pippin, formerly of Appomattox, now resident in Lynchburg, telling last night of his encounter with Deputy Sheriff Connor at about 3 o'clock on a street in Appomattox yesterday afternoon. He said he meant the difference as to what he had done to Mr. Connor and what was done to him. The left lens of the preacher's eye-glasses was broken and the bridge of his nose slightly abrased by the eye-glass bridge as the blow was struck. As to Mr. Conner he said he thought that he had given him "enough".

Describing the incident, Mr. Pippin said that he had gone to App matt x yesterday for the first time since his trial before the West Hanover Presbytery on December 4 to 5, 1923. His purpose was to get a real estate map he had left there. This map was about three feet long and the same width having two sticks at each end to keep it stretched. He had rolled the map and prepared it for mailing and was approaching the post office building when Mr. Connor approached him and referred to some expressions used in the trial in which he, Connor, was included. Mr. Pippin said that he told Mr. Connor that "it was now 1924 and that that other matter was in 1923 and had better be forgotten." Mr. Pippin then said, Mr. Conn r struck at him and to defend himself he brought his map roll into play using both hands to get swing and force.

Mr. Pippin said that no one offered to interfere so far as he is aware, that if any paid any attention at the time he heard nothing of it and though he was in Appomattox until 6:30 o'clock, when he boarded the train to come to Lynchburg, nothing was done so far as he knew toward getting a warrant though, he said, he had heard that there was some discussion among Mr. Connor's friends as to the advisability of having one sworn out against him. So far as he was concerned he decided to "let advertising" and would take no action as against Mr. Connor, he said.

Mr. Pippin was deposed from the ministry by the West Hanover Presbytery after the trial in December. He is now employed by the Bankers Fire Insurance company and has resided in Lynchburg since shortly after the trial, though he was with his father in Alabama for a few weeks in the interim.—Lynchburg News.

Eye witnesses say the fight was furious for a minute and the belligerents after the first round sought doctors for repairs to their faces. They were not hurt, though both appeared to be somewhat scratched up about the face. No further action will be given the matter it is believed and the incident is closed. Appomattox is a good place to fight if gentlemen only knew it.

Confederate veterans in the city and county to be the guests of Turner Ashby Chapter, United Daughters of Confederacy at a Lee birthday dinner on Saturday, January 19, was extended to R. B. Ohlenschlager, Confederate Veterans, at the regular monthly meeting of the camp in the First National Bank building. The invitation was accepted by the veterans present. The was the outstanding event of the local camp's meeting. Adjutant T. L. Whitehead acted as clerk and the meeting was occupied by routine matters. The attendance was small, due to the extreme weather, and to an earlier understanding that the December meeting of the camp would not be held.

Charlottesville—A conference for the purpose of organizing a Virginia State Society for Crippled Children has been called to meet at the University of Virginia Monday, February 4, under the auspices of the University division of extension. It is proposed to have the Virginia society affiliate with the International Society for Crippled Children to stimulate advances in the scientific care of the crippled. In some of the Virginia cities there are organizations that look after children and that have stressed their activities on the crippled child. The meeting to be held here next month is for the purpose of uniting the activities of all these agencies so that the work of all interested groups may be co-ordinated.

Bread on the Waters

LITTLE Miss Truedit was dead. She had been a friend to many in the small town, particularly to Abigail Clackmannon, the old maid, who had the bitterest tongue within a range of miles. She had helped Abigail in scores of ways, with money and friendship, and Abigail came every day, ostensibly as a companion, actually to do the work of a maid, at good wages.

So Abigail ought to have loved the little old lady.

And it was Abigail who discovered that old Miss Truedit had passed away quietly in her sleep the night before.

Miss Truedit had come to the town forty years previously, when it was only a village. She had taught school, opened a little millinery shop, prospered and retired. She was the poorest little person anywhere to be found. Not a kicked cur but knew it had a friend in her. Not a child but confided secrets to Miss Truedit that it kept from its own father and mother.

But who or what Miss Truedit had been before she came to the town nobody knew. A few had wondered once, but that was in the long ago.

And Abigail Clackmannon stood beside the bed and saw Miss Truedit lying in it, asleep in death.

For a moment she was terrified. She was about to run out and notify the doctor—there was no telephone in the house. Then she saw that it was too late. And then—well, she was Abigail Clackmannon!

Noiselessly, swiftly she set to work opening the various drawers. There was a little wooden chest that Miss Truedit had always kept locked, and Abigail had never succeeded in prying it not. Now, having satisfied her curiosity as to the drawers, she set about locating the key.

At last, when she was growing desperate, she saw a little key hanging about Miss Truedit's neck. Without hesitation she lifted it off and opened the chest.

Inside was a packet of letters in faded writing—so faded after forty years that it was with difficulty Abigail could make out much of the writing.

Two hours had passed before she awoke to the realization of where she was. She held in her hand the key to Miss Truedit's past. She had the choicest bit of neighborhood scandal that had ever passed from mouth to mouth.

Even after forty years it would be related, for the writer of those letters was Cyrus Haskins, the millionaire whose death, the year before, had been almost an international calamity.

They were written by Haskins in his early twenties! The thought leaped suddenly into Abigail's head that she could blackmail the son with those letters. For they told of a secret marriage and of a child—living or dead. Abigail had no means of discovering.

And that was the past history of little Miss Truedit, lying so peacefully there in the bed. Once a wife and mother, and to the second richest man upon the continent.

Oh, what a weapon had been placed in Abigail's hands! At once a fortune and endless theme! How people would crowd to see her!

And at the front door bell startled her. Suddenly she understood how long she had been in the room, how short a while she was when she asked why she had been so long? She would have to invent a lie.

Another ring. Frantically Abigail gathered the letters together and slipped them into her gown. She locked the wooden chest, pushed the key around Miss Truedit's neck again, and hurried downstairs. It was the butcher.

"Miss Truedit's dead!" she cried. "I just got here and—"

The butcher's jaw dropped. "Dead, you say, Miss Clackmannon?"

"Oh, don't stand there and do nothing. Give me a ride back to town. We must get the doctor—for that it's any good—and wait a minute!"

She rushed up the stairs again. She seized the letters in her fingers and began desperately tearing them to shreds. She watched them flutter out of the window.

"I guess I owed her that," she sighed, as she descended. "But—nobody'll ever know what I could have told 'em!"

Deep and Hot.

The newly-appointed pastor of a negro church faced a packed audience when he arose to deliver his sermon on this burning question: "Is there a hell?"

"Brethren," he said, "de Lord made de world round like a ball."

"Amen!" agreed the congregation.

"And de Lord made two axles for de world to go round on, and He put one axle at de North pole and one axle at de South pole.

"And de Lord put a lot of oil and grease in de center of de world so as to keep de axles well greased and oiled."

"Amen!" said the congregation.

"And then a lot of sinners dig wells in Pennsylvania and steal de Lord's oil and grease. And they dig wells in Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas, and in Mexico and Russia, and steal de Lord's oil and grease, and soon axles is gonna git hot. And den, dat will be hell, brethren, dat will be hell."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Education in Brief.

A professional ball player and manager of baseball teams has in a few words pointed out a fundamental distinction between the educated and uneducated mind. "The college boy," he says, "or anyone with even a part ly trained mind, tries to find out his faults and correct them. The uneducated fellow usually tries to hide his." It is clear enough which of the two will go faster and farther.

BAPTISTS REPORT $48,172,806 IN CASH

FORWARD MOVEMENT BRINGS IN LARGE SUM FOR MISSIONS, EDUCATION AND BENEVOLENCES.

ASK FOR $27,000,000 MORE

This Sum Needed to Complete Campaign Quota by End of 1924—People Are Called to Prayer.

DR. L. R. SCARBOROUGH
Who Will Lead Southern Baptists in Raising $27,000,000 in 1924.

Up to December, 1923, Southern Baptists had paid in on their subscriptions to the $75 Million Campaign the sum of $48,172,806.72. It is announced by the Campaign headquarters in Nashville. Four years of the five-year period have now expired, leaving approximately $27,000,000 to be raised by December, 1924, if the original Campaign objective is to be reached.

In the hope of obtaining this amount of money for the further advancement of all the general missionary, educational and benevolent enterprises fostered by Southern Baptists, the Campaign Conservation Commission has inaugurated an intensive effort that it is expected will reach every state district association and local church in the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention during this year.

Dr. L. R. Scarborough, who was general director of the original Campaign organization, has been asked to return to the Nashville headquarters from his home at Fort Worth for this closing year of the forward movement and give his personal attention to the direction of the special effort that will be waged for collecting the full $75,000,000 by the time the period for the program expires in December next. He has secured the co-operation of the various state and associational workers, will seek to enlist every Baptist in the South in some definite share in this closing year of the Campaign.

Baptists Have Big Income

While the goal that has been set this year is considerably larger than any that has yet been attained, Southern Baptists in a single year, Dr. O. E. Bryan, budget and steward ship director of the Campaign, announces that Southern Baptists have an annual income of at least $1,500,000,000, and he and the entire state stewardship directors will continue their effort in enlisting the local churches in the matter of systematic and proportionate giving, with a view to developing Southern Baptists to the point that they will give according to their means and give regularly each week by week. A tenth of the Southern Baptist income, if given to the denomination, would make available for religious work each year the sum of $150,000,000.

Each State Has Had Share

Indicating the sources from which the money already collected on the Campaign has come, the following contributions by states are announced: Alabama, $2,206,071.06; Arkansas, $1,- 667,394.13; District of Columbia, $223,- 827.81; Florida, $796,783.75; Georgia, $4,389,440.61; Illinois, $564,416.36; Kentucky, $5,091,181.78; Louisiana, $1,135,977.19; Maryland, $599,651.11; Mississippi, $3,494,281.79; Missouri, $2,020,076.46; New Mexico, $109,235.- 23; North Carolina, $4,099,732.46; Oklahoma, $1,306,943.76; South Carolina, $4,005,527.60; Tennessee, $3,117,- 152.26; Texas, $7,320,657.61; Virginia, $5,384,008.76; and specials from all sources, $1,252,015.04.

On the basis of distribution agreed upon by the various states the following amounts have gone to the various causes co-operating in the Campaign: State missions, $8,671,105.17; home missions, $7,225,921.01; foreign missions, $11,561,473.61; Christian education, or 119 Baptist seminaries, training schools, colleges and academies, $13,453,185.87; 21 Baptist hospitals, $3,267,776.29; 19 Baptist orphanages, $3,273,266.47; and ministerial relief, $1,698,048.33.

After conference with the general missionary, educational and benevolent causes which are embraced in the Campaign, Dr. Scarborough announces that raising of $27,000,000 in 1924 will not only enable all Southern Baptist enterprises to meet all their obligations but to make large advances at home and abroad as well.

Photos Detect Rash.

Photographs have shown symptomatic measles developing under children's skin days before it was visible to the eye. The camera is being studied by medical men as a means of early diagnosis of smallpox and other diseases involving a rash. People in contact with known cases could be photographed before any rash develops on the other skin. If the camera revealed the disease on them, they could be removed to isolation before they became infective.
